SUMMARY:

A. For the month of December 1944, this organization was attached to the following organizations:

1-6 December attached to the 80d Division Artillery
7-12 December attached to the 422d FA Group
13-16 December attached to the 4th Division Artillery
17-23 December operational attachment to 803d TD Bn
24-31 December attached to 4th Division Artillery

During the period of 1 December through 16 December the front supported by this Battalion was comparatively quiet. The firing companies were occupied mainly with indirect-fire missions of harassing nature, with primary positions prepared and occupied for possible tank threats. The indirect firing was coordinated and controlled through attachments with artillery battalions.

From 17 December to 31 December the companies were in support of Infantry Regiments and occupied primary gun positions for possible enemy tank attacks, with secondary positions prepared for individual platoons to fire indirect-fire missions in support of artillery Bns.

During the period 17 to 31 December the enemy became active, counter-attacks supported by heavy artillery and mortar fire caused our thinly held front lines to withdraw several kilometers, but after reinforcements arrived, we again pushed the enemy back to almost the same position from which he launched his first counter-attack.

B. Combat efficiency - Morale excellent.
Total casualties for period: 9 Battle casualties and 49 non-battle casualties.

C. Enemy material destroyed - None confirmed

D. Recommendations: None
