Figure 1

Figure 1 consists of two parts: (A) and (B). Part (A) shows a schematic diagram of a microarray chip. It features a grid of small squares representing individual spots or probes. The grid is divided into several sections by horizontal and vertical lines. Labels are present along the top and left edges of the grid, indicating different experimental conditions or probe types. Part (B) displays a series of grayscale images arranged in a row. These images appear to be fluorescence scans of the same microarray chip shown in part (A), showing varying intensities of light across the grid of spots.
